No Monsters, No Haints—Just Jerks

I wrote in this column June 22 about "The Mechanics of a Monster," my point being that there are no ghosts or monsters—only human scoundrels who invent them to play on the credulity of their fellow citizens. Thus our headline today: No Monsters, No Haints—Just Jerks.

In my piece June 22 I cited the case of a White River mussel fisherman who invented the White River Monster to frighten other mussel-field workers so he could gain a monopoly of the business of making buttons for shirts—and it worked until one night some dauntless rivermen caught him red-handed towing his monster-boat from one site on the river to another. That ended both the monster and the monopoly idea—until the rise of plastic shirt-buttons put all the White River mussel-diggers out of business.

That was the June 22 report from this unbeliever in haints and monsters.

We had startling confirmation on the monster question in a Texarkana dispatch to this morning's papers. Fouke, in southern Miller County, as you know, has been enjoying recent notoriety for its Fouke Monster. But the mystery and the fame came to an abrupt end Monday when three Texarkanians were convicted of staging a hoax and fined $50 each on charges of disturbing the peace.

Don't play the scoundrel's game by going along with the notion that haints and monsters are for real. If you are an unbeliever you wear a coat of armor that is impregnable to those who night-ride against their neighbors.

Police Talk With Wounded Gang Figure

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Underworld figures who had been reported feuding with reputed Mafia boss Joseph A. Colombo Sr. have been questioned by police about the shooting of Colombo at an Italian-American Unity Day rally he was preparing to lead. Colombo remained in critical condition in a hospital today.

The gunman who fired three bullets into Colombo's head and neck Monday was shot to death moments later. Chief of Detectives Albert Seedman said the assault on Colombo was planned, possibly by rival mobsters.

The assailant was identified as Jerome A. Johnson, 25, of New Brunswick, N.J., who posed as a freelance photographer in order to get near Colombo.

Joseph and Albert Gallo, two of the underworld leaders questioned by police, were reported to have recently renewed with Colombo a feud dating back a decade when they fought on opposite sides in a gang war that claimed about 20 lives.

Representatives Split Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., voted with the majority Monday as the House defeated 219-176 the Senate's nine-month Indochina war deadline.

Reps. David Pryor and Bill Alexander, both D-Ark., voted for a motion to order the House accept the Senate's deadline.

Nixon Calls in Experts on Economy

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today President Nixon will not seek tax reductions to give the economy further stimulation, nor will he attempt to speed federal spending.

In addition, the White House announced Nixon will veto a $5.6-billion public works bill, including a proposal to create jobs for the unemployed.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told newsmen Nixon will not institute a wage and price review board in an attempt to control inflation, nor will he use powers granted to him by Congress to clamp down mandatory wage and price controls on the economy.

The White House announced that Connally, a Democrat and former Texas governor, has been designated chief economic spokesman for Nixon.

Although the economy has not moved fast enough to cut into a 6.2 per cent unemployment rate, Connally said the President has decided there

House Beats Off Attempt for Pullout

By MICHAEL J. REILLY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House antiwar forces have mustered the largest group ever in losing an attempt to speed the end of the Indochina war.

The tally came on rejection, 219 to 176, of a Senate amendment to the draft-extension bill to set a nine-month deadline for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina. The draft bill now moves into Senate and House conference, where little hope is seen for full congressional approval before the present draft laws run out at midnight Wednesday.

The 176 proponents of the amendment Monday were 18 more than voted two weeks ago for a Dec. 31 cutoff of funds supporting U.S. involvement in the war.

The new antiwar voters included some surprises.

Reps. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., were among the losers. They said they voted for the deadline amendment because it was the first proposal that wouldn't tie President Nixon's hands. And both said the measure was strictly advisory in nature, expressing the sense of Congress.

There were 143 Democrats and 33 Republicans in favor of the deadline.

Refuses to Halt Union Convention

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge refused today to halt the Teamsters convention opening next week in Miami Beach, but ordered the giant union to take steps to give rank-and-file members a bigger voice in their affairs.

"It is clear to the court that rank-and-file members are not afforded a full opportunity to participate in the affairs of the union," said U.S. District Judge June L. Green.

Acting on a petition by Don Vestal, the Nashville, Tenn., local Teamsters leader, she ordered the union to set up procedures to permit union members to petition for a change in their constitution and then submit it to ratification by the Teamsters 2 million members.

But she refused Vestal's request to halt the July 5 convention at which Frank E. Fitzsimmons is views as certain to take over as president to replace the imprisoned James R. Hoff. Hoff resigned last week and Fitzsimmons automatically became president. Hoff also endorsed Fitzsimmons for election to a new five-year presidential term.

Vestal had complained that the 2,000 convention delegates are largely local union officials who are given little voice in convention affairs, particularly changes in the unions constitution, until they are presented by convention committees appointed by Fitzsimmons.

Vestal also wanted the court to order that top union officers be elected by membership vote, rather than by convention vote.

Judge Green said most of the complaints about election processes were internal matters of the union.

Vestal, a 54-year-old former truck driver, has said he will run against Fitzsimmons for the Teamsters presidency at the convention opening Monday.

HOPE, ARKANSAS, TUESDAY, JUNE 29, 1971

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the forecasts at midyear remain rather optimistic, at least three measures of economic health followed by ordinary Americans are failing to respond as had been hoped.

Interest rates are climbing again. Inflation continues and may even have accelerated. Unemployment remains high and is widely expected to continue around 6 per cent or more for the rest of the year.

And partially as a result, a fourth measure, consumer confidence, remains depressed.

Highly sensitive to any news about interest rates, inflation and jobs, consumers are keeping a rubber band on their money roll, refusing to overextend themselves. They have

Senate Faces Spending Proposals

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate faced proposals today to clamp a $68-billion spending limit on the Pentagon and ground the Havana-to-Miami airlift that has ferried nearly 250,000 Cuban refugees into the United States.

Both issues have injected controversy into what ordinarily would be routine approval of a House-passed measure to provide temporary financing until Aug. 6 for government agencies.

However, with the Senate hoping to start a 4th of July holiday recess Wednesday, agreement was reached last week to limit debate on the measure to four hours.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., joined in sponsoring the amendment to cut $7 billion from the administration's defense budget for the fiscal year starting Thursday.

Congress has not acted yet on the $75-billion measure, but has voted to boost military pay increases an additional $1.7 billion.

Thus, the Proxmire-Mathias amendment would push Defense Department spending $8.7 billion below the projected level.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said the proposed cut would force elimination of almost half the department's 3.5 million jobs.

"It would have consequences for our national security far beyond what I believe any member of Congress would be willing to endorse," Laird said Monday in a statement.

The cut, he said, would cause a 40-per-cent reduction in major weapons' contracts and a 30-per-cent slash in operating ships and planes and training land, sea and air forces.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, acting on the stop-gap money measure, wrote in a ban on further government financing of the Cuban refugee airlift.

The committee said the administration's budget projected spending $1.05 million to fly in 42,000 refugees during the coming fiscal year.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., estimated the cutoff would save about $5 million including welfare costs for jobless refugees.

Patman Paid for Dinner, Private Talk

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Wall Street firm paid $1,500 to Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee to have dinner and a private talk with its top customers and prospects last week.

Patman, veteran Texas Democrat noted for his opposition to high interest rates and his advocacy of tighter regulations for banks, said the fee was justified and "I have no apologies to make for it."

Patman is getting the payment from the New York stock exchange firm of Sartorius & Co. after speaking at the Thursday night dinner for 34 guests, including men from five New York banks, two pension funds, the Ford Foundation, an insurance company and other investment firms.

"It was the kind of meeting where I tell them what I think and what's going to happen on certain bills," Patman said. "That was all they were interested in."

Patman said he uses fees of this type to buy books to give to Texas schools. He said he sent out 9,000 copies of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" last year. Telephone calls to public school offices in two cities in Patman's district got no response. Schools are closed for the summer.

Patman's counterpart as Senate Banking Committee chairman, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., listed $6,250 in speaking fees last year from various banking and credit associations, and confirmed one check for $1,000 was paid for speaking at a similar private gathering.

"They had a group of people interested in financial matters here, and I talked with them," Sparkman said.

Only the Senate, not the House, makes its outside speaking fees public each year. But a Sartorius official, Thomas C. Sorensen, confirmed his company was sending a $1,500 check to Patman. "I haven't received anything from them yet, but I assume there will be an honorarium," said Patman. "I can't go unless I get one."

In his speech at the dinner, Patman was reported to have reiterated opposition to a government-guaranteed loan for troubled Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and again called for tighter banking regulation.

"Why should the taxpayer guarantee a profit for private banks which refused to make loans on their own," asked Patman, whose committee is to open hearings on the Lockheed proposal July 8.

"He really laid it on thick," said a guest at the exclusive session. "The bankers were furious."

Decision Due Any Time as High Court Ponders Secret Document Case

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today continued work on the government's suit to suppress reports of the Pentagon papers, with a decision due any time.

Pending a ruling, The Washington Post and The New York Times remained under orders—which they say have no precedent in America's history—not to publish stories on parts of the 47-volume secret study the Government says are sensitive.

The court apparently voted on the case over the weekend after hearing arguments in a rare Saturday session. One court official was overheard to say the justices had made their decision and were writing opinions.

A spokesman said he expects a decision by the end of the week, possibly today.

Jury Indicts Ellsberg, to Reconvene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted Dr. Daniel Ellsberg on charges of stealing the government's top secret Pentagon Papers on Vietnam. The jury plans further investigation of the leak after the July 4th holiday.

The jury, whose week-long investigation led to arrest warrants for Ellsberg on Friday and the indictments Monday, was instructed to reconvene July 6. A Justice Department spokesman declined to say if indictments of other persons would be issued.

Ellsberg, 40, who had been missing since June 16, surrendered in Boston Monday and admitted giving top secret documents on America's involvement in Vietnam to the news media.

The government has won court orders temporarily restraining four newspapers from printing articles based on the documents in their possession, and the Supreme Court is considering the cases of two of the newspapers.

"I am prepared to face all consequences," said Ellsberg, one of the so-called "whiz kids" under former Defense Secre-

Public Works Bill Vetoed by Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today vetoed a $5.6-billion public works bill, saying it "would not even make a real start on delivering on its implied promise" of quickly creating new jobs.

Nixon, in a veto message to the Senate, aimed his fire at a $2-billion section of the measure that would set up pump-priming public works projects in localities with high unemployment rates.

Experience under a similar law in 1962, Nixon wrote, indicated there would be an 18-month time lag before the vetoed measure could become fully effective. By then, he said, "Further stimulation would be unnecessary and inflationary."

He based his time lag estimate on the long delays encountered in planning and organizing construction projects.

While vetoing this bill, Nixon asked Congress to promptly enact an administration-backed emergency employment act would finance the creation of temporary public service jobs which, Nixon argued, could be rapidly filled without the delays inherent in public works projects. The measure he favors has cleared a Senate-House conference committee.

The vetoed bill also contained funds for the Appalachian Regional Development Administration.

In his message, Nixon urged Congress to quickly pass emergency legislation to continue these two programs, due to expire June 30, until permanent legislation can be enacted.

The President contended the vetoed public works bill "would have created dead-end jobs amounting to a system of permanent subsidized public employment."

Getty Paid $4 Million for Painting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $4 million Titian painting "Death of Actaeon" will reside in the J. Paul Getty Museum, although it will have "visits" to Britain, its new owners say.

French and Co. of New York, acting for the museum, said it paid a "purely nominal sum" above the $4,032,000 that London art dealer Julius Wetzner paid when the picture was auctioned last Friday.

Vote Due on New Manned Space Bill

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid echoes of its battle over the supersonic-transport plane, the Senate votes today whether to include a new manned space shuttle in a $3.2-billion space-projects authorization bill.

While no one claims a fleet of reusable space craft would harm either the earth environment or outer space, the debate focuses, as it did in the case of the SST, on the best way to use the nation's resources.

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., is a leader of senators who claim the $100 million for preliminary development is only the beginning of spending that might go as high as $25 billion, while pressing problems on earth remain unsolved.

Mondale said there is a far bigger scientific payoff in unmanned, instrumented space flight which he said can be accomplished at a far lower cost than any manned program.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., representing the Senate Space committee, said the total shuttle price tag will reach no higher than $12.8 billion and some money actually will be saved by converting to a system incorporating craft as reusable as airplanes.

Another space-shuttle advocate, Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., replied to Mondale and others who have complained unbridled technology is in itself a potential danger.

"There are those today here in Congress who want to stop technological progress, and bury our heads in the motionless sands of status quo," Gurney said. "This nation is not ready for that kind of defeatism. We should reject that kind of thinking out of hand."

The space shuttle is described by the committee as a transportation system of craft shuttling between an orbiting space platform and the earth.

Ships would take off vertically, powered by rocket engines. Re-entering the earth's atmosphere, they would land horizontally, using a conventional airport runway.

Shuttles would be designed for 100 or more flights with minimum ground maintenance.

10,000 Enemy in New Red Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese general claimed today that Hanoi has committed 10,000 troops to an offensive against allied artillery bases in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Phan Van Phu, commander of the 1st Division, told newsmen in DQONG Ha that the enemy force is maneuvering in 800 square miles of Quang Tri province, west from the provincial capital to the Laotian border and north of Highway 9 to the demilitarized zone.

Phu said 6,000 of the enemy troops infiltrated across the DMZ since May 1. He said they have mortars, rocket launchers and antiaircraft guns but no heavy artillery.

Phu denied reports that the North Vietnamese had moved 122mm and 130mm guns across the DMZ. The general said such big guns are just north of the buffer zone but "they have not been used against our forces up to now."

The general said he expected "heavy fighting" along the defensive chain of bases in the unpopulated northwest sector. But he predicted they would be able to keep the enemy from breaking through to the coastal lowlands for a pre-election offensive in the populated regions.

Although the South Vietnamese were driven from Fire Base Fuller, Phu said the enemy is "generally weaker this year." He attributed this to the South Vietnamese invasion into Laos.

The North Vietnamese have kept up steady pressure on the allied firebases in the northwest sector with mortars, rockets and ground probes. One outpost four miles below the DMZ, Fire Base Fuller, was abandoned by the South Vietnamese last week after an 800-round mortar barrage. The hilltop base was reoccupied temporarily Sunday to provide protection for U.S. and South Vietnamese reinforcements sweeping the area.

South Vietnamese headquarters today reported only sporadic ground clashes in the region, but North Vietnamese gunners bombarded several bases and also shot down an American fighter-bomber.

A U.S. spokesman said the F4 Phantom was crippled by antiaircraft fire over the western portion of the DMZ. The pilot tried to make it back to his base but couldn't, and the plane crashed into the South China Sea half a mile northwest of Da Nang. The two crewmen ejected and were rescued unhurt, the spokesman said.

is enough stimulation to do the job eventually.

The secretary told newsmen that an unemployment rate of four per cent, considered by economists to be a full employment, "is a myth. It's never happened, except in war time."

He said the President wants to reduce the unemployment rate and will look favorably on proposals that would carry out that goal. The public works bill, the President is vetoing is not in that category, the secretary said.

President Nixon's economic advisers have said the unemployment rate would be coming down to the 4.5 per cent zone by the middle of 1972. Connally appeared to soft pedal, if not abandon, that projection.

"I would not try to peg the precise point that we would try to achieve," he said.

Nixon and top staff members talked about the economy last weekend at Camp David. The President called Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns for a 45-minute discussion Monday.

White House economic advisers say the economy is not moving fast enough now to cut into a high rate of unemployment, which reached 6.2 per cent in April despite Nixon's expansionist course this year.

been spiritless buyers. And there's the dilemma.

In order to get the economy moving, it is generally agreed, confidence must be built. Almost every economist considers it a necessary ingredient. It is the common theme of most midyear reports from banks and businesses.

But how is confidence to be built when consumers and businessmen are faced with the disappointing statistical facts? In the absence of encouraging news, both consumers and businessmen brood rather than act.

The Morgan Guaranty Survey, for example, notes that businessmen not only are concerned with the immediate state of the economy but also are disturbed by a feeling that basic, long-range changes may be taking place.

Such deep probing and questioning is not the type of thinking that brings a commitment to the future. It is instead the prelude to more indecision and procrastination.

The Bank of America is not among the pessimists. It foresees a recovery in both business and consumer confidence, "the catalyst needed for sustained and rapid growth in the economy."

Hope Jr. Legion Wins Two Games

Scoring freely in one game and using a fine defense in the other enabled the Hope Junior American Legion team to win two games over the weekend and pull their seasonal record to an even 9-9 for the year.

Saturday night Hope traveled to Benton for a game with Salem, a suburb of Benton, and scored freely on 16 hits to blast out a 16-4 victory. Originally the meeting was to have been a doubleheader.

Scoring three runs in the first inning, two in the third, and four in the fourth, Hope took a 9-3 lead and had no trouble after that as Richard Butler recorded his fourth victory against no losses, scattering six hits, striking out four Salem batters, and aiding his own cause with three hits.

Buddy "Merle" Ingram led in batting with four hits in six trips to the plate while Sidney Waller had three hits also.

Sunday afternoon at Legion Field Hope edged Texarkana 5-4 to revenge an earlier 10-9 loss.

Jimmy Pruden went the distance for his fourth victory against one loss, that being at the hands of Camden last week. Pruden gave up four runs on seven hits while striking out

Methodists 23-6 Over Assembly

In Monday night's Christian Athletic Association softball action, Assembly of God was defeated 23-6 by First Methodist. Wesley Huddleston made two homers and Tommy Overton and Doyle Dunn both made one, all for First Methodist.

The second game between First Baptist and Hope Church of Christ was postponed because of rain.

three Texarkana batters. Waller had a perfect day with three hits in three trips to the plate while Ingram contributed two hits.

Hope's game on Tuesday night with Fordyce has been cancelled, but possibly their will be a game at Legion Field with Texarkana, Arkansas, while on Wednesday the team travels to Texarkana with a battle against the Texas side Indians.

scheduled working day before summer recess. But the ruling did not come and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the court would continue to sit pending further orders, presumably the Pentagon-papers case.

The government contends further publication of the papers will harm America's relations with other countries, endanger American GIs in Indochina, postpone release of U.S. prisoners or war and delay the end of the Indochina fighting.

The newspapers say the Constitution's guarantee of a free press gives them the right to tell the public about such matters and that the papers are stamped secret not for military reasons but to avoid embarrassing bureaucrats.

First the Times and then the Post published reports based on the papers, a top-secret history of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The government sued the newspapers separately to stop the articles and obtained temporary orders halting them. But it lost both suits for permanent bans before district judges in New York and Washington.

Fouke Monster Hoax Brings Fines, to 3

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Three Texarkana men forfeited $50 bond each Monday after an alleged hoax Saturday night concerning the "Fouke monster."

State Trooper Marvin Sinyard said the three were charged after they allegedly inflicted scratches on each other in an attempt to make themselves look as if they had been attacked by the monster.

The three were identified as L. H. Harvin, Floyd Thomas and Robert B. Williams.

Officers said a check of material beneath two of the men's fingernails led officers to believe the incident was a hoax.

Miller County Sheriff Leslie Greer said Monday that anyone found hunting the monster with guns or trespassing would be arrested. He said that farmers in the area had complained that their crops were being damaged by people hunting the monster.

tary Robert S. McNamara and now a research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Ellsberg is charged with theft and unauthorized possession of government documents and faces a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison on each of the two felony counts.

Released on $6,000 bond in Boston Monday, Ellsberg can decide to stand trial either in Boston or Los Angeles, a Justice Department spokesman said. A hearing was set for July 15 by U.S. Magistrate Peter Princi of Boston.

The indictment accuses Ellsberg of unlawful possession and conversion of documents entitled, "United States-Vietnam Relations, 1945-1967." It says this occurred in the Los Angeles area on unknown dates around September and October of 1969.

Ellsberg formerly worked in nearby Santa Monica at the Rand Corp., which does research for the Pentagon and others. Federal sources say Rand had a set of such documents.

Ellsberg told a news conference after his Boston arraignment, "I felt as an American citizen—as a responsible citizen—I could no longer cooperate with concealing this information from the American people."

Linked arm in arm with his wife, Patricia, he told a cheering crowd outside the courthouse, "I wonder if many people here wouldn't think 10 years is a cheap price to pay" to end the war in Vietnam.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

FASCINATION DOESN'T MEAN INDOCTRINATION

Dear Helen:

I'm not crazy or subversive or anything, though maybe people might think so if they knew....

For the past year I've had an inexplicable interest in, and have loved to learn everything about, the Nazis, especially Hitler. I'm fascinated by books on him and movies that show Hitler's Germany.

Not that I admire the Nazis. I'm just "drawn" to them. I dearly want to be a good person and I can't decide whether this studying the Nazis is a sin. I don't tell anyone, not even my parents, and I feel awfully sneaky and ashamed, kind of like a secret drinker feels I guess.

Please, Helen, this isn't a joke, but a very big problem to this little girl of 13. -A.W.

Dear A.:

Who isn't fascinated by tales of cruelty and crunching power and obsession—and horror—all those things we'll hopefully never see in our dull, safe lives?

Don't be ashamed of your interest in history, little A.W., learning the facts doesn't mean you're "converted." More likely, just the opposite!—Right? -H.

Please settle an argument: When you burn your finger is it better to smear butter on it, or apply cold water? -COOKING ON A HOT PLATE

Dear COAHP:
My vote goes to the cold water treatment, though I read a more unusual remedy in Bert Bacharach's book "How To Do Almost Everything": touch the burned finger to your earlobe. It works—he says. -H.

("Great," says our daughter Sue, "But what if you back into a hot iron?")

Dear Helen:

About 12 months ago I wrote some additions to "What is a Serviceman's Girl."

Well, now I'd like to share with you and your many readers what it's like to scratch off those final days until my Serviceman comes home!

It's been 11 months, four days, one hour, 45 minutes, since he gave me that last kiss.

It's now 11 days until he gives me the first one after all that time!

It's still running to the mailbox, and because our mailman knows what I'm looking for, I can tell by the expression on his face if there's a letter or not.

I don't smear the ink with tears anymore...I flood the tape recorder 'cause he sends tape letters too.

I used to think 53 letters was a lot. What shall I do with all 299 of soon be hearing how a happily married gal adjusts to life on a tropic island. -J.

Dear Judy:

Lots of luck and much, much happiness to you both! Do write! -H.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — The difficult and delicate issues raised by publication of excerpts from the classified Pentagon Papers were pulled together neatly in an ABC news special Monday night.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, Benjamin Bradlee of The Washington Post and former presidential press secretary James Hagerty explained their viewpoints and concern. While their positions varied, all believed that present methods of handling classified material—particularly the declassification procedures—should be revised.

Bradlee noted that much classified material had been published and said that newspapermen have been handed "top secret" material by "the most noble of men including presidents" and urged to publish it. His position was that the public's right to know in some instances outweighs the technicality of a stamp.

Hagerty, now a broadcasting executive, said a weekend check revealed that 160 million pages of World War II material is still classified and so is 75 million pages relating to Korea. He said he knew of instances when a "top secret" stamp was placed on a report merely "to give it importance."

Sen. Goldwater's position was that the classification should not have been violated under any circumstances.

The half-hour discussion served to highlight the complexity of the issue—national security, overuse of classification and most of all, use of the stamp to prevent official embarrassment instead of its original purpose.

Arnie Nuvo, CBS' instant executive, and his family will be moving in mid-September. To the blonde actress who plays his wife in the situation comedy, it is almost like starting a new series.

Ali Says He's Not Bitter

CHICAGO (AP) — Muhammad Ali, upheld by the Supreme Court in his conscientious objection to the draft, says he is not bitter toward the men who stripped him of his world heavyweight boxing title.

Ali, 29, formerly known as Cassius Clay, was deprived of the title when he refused to take that one step forward to military induction in 1967. He was later convicted of draft evasion. But the Supreme Court overturned the conviction Monday, because of his Muslim religious beliefs.

"I can't be mad because they did what they thought was right," he said of the loss of his crown. "I got to ask them to respect the rights to my beliefs. But if I'm going to ask that, then I got to respect the rights to their beliefs."

"There wasn't no bitterness," he told newsmen after hearing the decision. Ali is in Chicago training for his Houston fight July 26 with Jimmy Ellis, his former sparring partner.

He said he was told of the Supreme Court decision by the owner of a grocery store on the South Side where he had stopped to buy an orange.

"I was walking to my car ... and this fellow ran out to me with tears in his eyes," Ali said. "He grabbed me and hugged me and shouted 'I'm so happy for you, you're free, you're free. I just heard it on the radio.'"

Ali admitted the legal wrangling was a mental hazard for four years but he said he didn't regret his decision.

"I don't think it bothered me a lot, but you have to live with it," he said. "If you do something bad, rob, beat somebody up unjustly, it's different. But if it's something you believe in, with your whole conscience, you got to believe then there ain't no punishment. It's honorable when you're standing up for your own beliefs."

He said, "I already did my celebrating. I said a prayer to Allah."

Ali said he plans two more fights after the meeting with Ellis before a hoped-for rematch with Joe Frazier, who defeated Ali in a title bout March 8 in New York City.

"I think the public will want this rematch and I certainly want it because I still think I whipped Frazier," Ali said.

After the Frazier rematch, "I wind it up," the 29-year-old ex-champion said. "I just want to work with people, especially youth, with all that's going on like dope, theft, gang killing and homosexuality. I'll try all I can to help."

US, Russian Teams Clash at UCLA

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Youthfulness rates as a common denominator for the United States and Russian track teams which clash this weekend at the University of California.

Following international propriety, coaches Vladimir Popov of the USSR and Dave Maggard, the California coach who heads the U.S. men's team, haven't made predictions on the outcome.

Popov did say Monday, "Our team is very young, but I think our team is a very good one. I feel most of the people on this national team will be representing us in the Olympics at Munich (Germany) next year."

Rod Laver Out of Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Rod Laver, once the unbeatable king of tennis, is out of Wimbledon, thanks to the American firm of Gorman and Ralston, Inc.

Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., was the man who drummed Laver out of the big tournament Monday with a 9-7, 8-6, 6-3 victory in the quarter-finals.

Dennis Ralston, the U.S. Davis Cup coach from Bakersfield, Calif., was the man who advised him how to do it.

Ralston and Ed Turville of St. Petersburg, Fla., non-playing captain of the U.S. team, were happy men today. They had two of their men—Gorman and Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif.—safely in the semifinals and a third—Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla.—playing Australia's Ken Rosewall today for a semifinals place.

Before facing Laver, Gorman had a 30-minute conference with Ralston on Rod's possible weaknesses.

"Dennis is one of the best students of other players in the world today," Gorman said. "He and I decided that if there was a way to beat Laver we would plan the right tactics for it. And it worked."

Gorman, who won the first point or two in almost every service game, claimed this was the secret of his victory.

Smith defeated Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 and will meet Gorman in the semifinals Thursday.

The other semifinalists have yet to be decided. In the remaining quarter-finals today Richey was playing Rosewall and two Australians, defending champion John Newcombe and Colin Dibley, faced each other.

In the women's singles, the eyes of the fans are on Evonne Goolagong, the 19-year-old Australian girl who has gone through to the semifinals with the coolness of a veteran.

On Monday she outgunned Nancy Gunter, the U.S. Wightman Cup star from San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 6-2, coming from behind after trailing in each set.

That left the United States with only one hope for the women's crown—three-time champion Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., who defeated Francoise Durr of France 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In Wednesday's semifinals Mrs. King will meet Miss Goolagong and Margaret Court, who has also won the title three times, meets Australian countrywoman Judy Dalton.

St. Louis Downed 11-5 by Pirates

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Pittsburgh Pirates, leaders in the National League's East Division, have surrendered 35 runs in the last five games, a rather alarming average of seven per game.

It would be alarming except for the lively Buc bats which have produced 50 runs over the same span—10 runs per game.

The Pirates had their hot bats working again Monday night—all except the hottest one which belongs to Willie Stargell, the major league leader with 28 homers and 79 runs batted in. Stargell was hitless but the other Bucs collected 15 hits and ripped St. Louis 11-5.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York trimmed Philadelphia 3-1, Los Angeles downed Chicago 6-4, San Diego slugged San Francisco 6-2, Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from Montreal 4-3 and 5-4 and Houston took a pair from Atlanta 6-5 and 6-4.

In the American League, Kansas City shut out California 3-0, Boston belted Washington 10-4, Milwaukee downed Chicago 7-4, Cleveland swept a doubleheader from New York 3-0 and 5-2, and Oakland downed Minnesota 6-4. Detroit's game at Baltimore was halted by curfew after 13 innings with the score tied 4-4.

The Pirates got started fast against St. Louis, bunting five runs in the first inning, three of them on Manny Sanguillen's bases-loaded triple. That was only hit and every other Pittsburgh batter except Stargell had at least two with Jose Pagan collecting three.

After the Cards had chipped three runs off Pittsburgh's early bulge, the Pirates struck again, bunting six more runs in the fourth inning with Roberto Clemente and Bob Robertson each chipping in with two-run singles.

Joe Torre had three hits including his 11th homer for St. Louis, hiking his National League leading batting average to .373.

The victory kept Pittsburgh four games ahead of New York in the East Division. The Mets whipped Philadelphia, spoiling Rick Wise's first start since last week's no-hitter.

A University of Pennsylvania computer predicted odds of 600-to-1 against Wise pitching a second straight no-hitter and Tommie Agee's leadoff single in the first inning confirmed the computer's printout. Agee had four hits including a homer but it was Ken Boswell's two-run single in the eighth inning that sank the Phillies.

Willie Crawford and Wes Parker drove in two runs apiece as Los Angeles downed Chicago and chopped a game off San Francisco's West Division lead.

The Dodgers, who've won 13 of their last 18, now trail the Giants by 5½ games. Al Downing won his ninth game and one of Crawford's RBIs came on a first-inning homer.

Meanwhile, San Diego knocked off San Francisco with Clay Kirby besting Juan Marichal.

Dave Campbell doubled home three unearned runs as the Padres rallied for four runs in the fifth inning. Ed Spiezio homered for San Diego. Cesar Cedeno ripped three hits and drove in three runs in the second game as Houston came from behind to beat Atlanta and complete a sweep of their doubleheader.

Cedeno's hitting rallied Houston from a 3-0 deficit after the Astros had held off a late Atlanta rally to take the opener behind Don Wilson.

Wilson battled through a three-run Braves' rally in the eighth inning to record his ninth victory of the year.

Don Gullett also won his ninth for the Reds, who took a

MAJOR LEAGUE LEADERS

AMERICAN LEAGUE
BATTING 175 at bats — Oliva, Minn., .377; Murcer, N.Y., .341.
RUNS — Buford, Balt., 54; Oliva, Minn., 49.

Gullett got late help from Clay Carroll to nail down the first game win with George Foster and Lee May contributing home runs.

May also homered in the nightcap and the Reds completed their sweep, scoring the winning run on Johnny Bench's ninth inning single. May opened the decisive ninth with a single and then pinch runner Buddy Bradford stole second and reached third when Ron Hunt let the catcher's throw get past him for an error. Then Bench's hit won it.

Detroit, Baltimore Locked 4-4

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Monday night television baseball game had almost everything—Al Kaline's five hits, a pine tar hunt, the drama of a ninth inning rally. Everything but an ending.

The Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles gave the viewers an eyeful, but left them hanging when the Baltimore city curfew cut them off after 13 innings with the score deadlocked 4-4.

Fans around the country will have to read now about the final finish after the game is resumed at the start of the 14th tonight before the regularly scheduled non-televised contest.

In games that ended, Boston walloped Washington 10-4, Oakland tripped Minnesota 6-4. Kansas City blanked California 3-0, Milwaukee beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4 and Cleveland swept a doubleheader from the New York Yankees 3-0 and 5-2.

In completed National League games, Pittsburgh bombed St. Louis 11-5, San Diego downed San Francisco 6-2, the New York Mets stopped Philadelphia 3-1, Cincinnati swept a pair from Montreal 4-3 and 5-4, Houston double dipped Atlanta 6-5 and 6-4 and, in the afternoon, Los Angeles trimmed the Chicago Cubs 6-4.

The Detroit-Baltimore affair was great while it lasted, even when the Tigers and Mickey Lolich appeared en route to an easy victory with a 4-0 lead built on two-run homers by Bill Freehan and Kaline.

First, there was Kaline, the aging great who put on a hitting show with his homer, a single and a double, before adding a single and a double in extra innings.

Then there was the search for the missing pine tar. The Orioles claimed that Lolich was using pine tar—illegal on both televised and untelevised games—to show the viewers a few sticky tricks with a baseball. Umpire Bill Kunkel, making like a TV detective, frisked the pitcher, his hands, his cap, his clothing. But came up empty-handed.

Pine tar or no pine tar, Lolich breezed into the ninth with a two-hitter before the Orioles broke loose with two walks and a double to load the bases and Frank Robinson's long fly for one run.

Then up stepped Brooks Robinson with two out, 0-2 the count and brought the partisan crowd to its feet with a tying blast over the left field wall.

Lolich settled down and stopped the Orioles the rest of the way in an iron man stint, but it was too late, just after midnight, and no inning can start after 11:59 p.m. EDT.

"Why must Baltimore be different from all other cities? Martin complained. "What do they have, a bunch of puritans here? Someone ought to tell them this is 1971."

Doug Griffin hit his first major league homer for Boston in the third, but later injured his back. His replacement, John Kennedy, tied the game in the seventh with his first homer of the season and squeezed in the second run in a decisive seven-run eighth.

Oakland remained 11 games ahead in the West as Chuck Dobson kept his record perfect at 6-0 with relief help in the final three innings. Reggie Jackson had two doubles and two RBIs and Joe Rudi a single and a double, one RBI and two runs scored. The A's survived two-run homers by Rich Reese and Tony Oliva to win their 11th game in 14 tries.

Kansas City rookie Paul Splitteroff scattered seven hits for his first major league shutout. The Royals scored on Amos Otis's single, a wild pitch and a ground out.

Milwaukee scored five times, two on Roberto Pena's single, in the first inning en route to their victory that reliever Ken Sanders saved by snuffing out a seventh inning Chicago rally.

Cleveland broke up a scoreless duel in their opener against Fritz Peterson with three runs in the ninth inning on Ray Fosse's sacrifice fly, a single by Chris Chambliss and another sac fly by Jack Heide-mann. Ray Lamb and Steve Mingori combined for the shut-out. Hits by Kurt Bevacqua and Heide-mann drove in two runs in the eighth inning of the nightcap to snap a 2-2 tie after the Yankees broke a 26 inning scoreless drought earlier.

Praises Pulaski Co. Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Chief Justice Carleton Harris of the state Supreme Court has praised three Little Rock officials for their work in reducing the backlog of court cases in the Pulaski County area.

The compliments went to Circuit Judges William K. Kirby and Richard B. Adkisson and Pros. Atty. Jim Guy Tucker. At Rucker's request, Harris assigned special judges to the 16th Judicial District to help the district's two criminal court judges.

"The judiciary and the state of Arkansas may well be proud of your accomplishment during the first quarter of 1971," Harris said in the letter. "During the quarter 423 cases were filed and 602 were terminated leaving 1,510 untried at the beginning of the second quarter."

"God thunders wondrously with his voice: he does great things which we cannot comprehend. For to the snow he says, 'Fall on the earth'; and to the shower and the rain, 'Be strong.'"—Job 37: 5, 6.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Foods Can Aggravate Problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would be one of the most grateful correspondents you have ever had if you could give me some advice on what is best for gas formation. I am a married lady 70 years old and haven't known what it is to get a good night's sleep due to this fullness that awakens me for hours (and without a sedative, it is an all-night vigil).

I realize so much is said about relaxation but how does one relax when they feel full to the nth degree? I failed to say I have an inactive gall bladder. I wonder if this is significant or not?

Dear Reader—Gas formation can be caused by an inactive gall bladder. People with gallstones or any other cause for abnormal function of the gall bladder and sometimes the liver often have excess gas formation. Fatty foods often aggravate the problem. You might try avoiding fried foods, fatty foods, eggs (the yolks are the problem), beans, pork, butter or margarine, milk and cream.

Some people without gall bladder trouble have difficulty digesting the lactose in the milk. You might be one of these people. If so you will need to discontinue milk of any type. If you stop milk you should take calcium or eat nonfat cottage cheese or buttermilk, otherwise your diet may be deficient in calcium.

Occasionally a person is fatlike. The term is used for increased amounts of fat and cholesterol in the blood. The condition is often associated with heart and vascular disease. The diet principles and living patterns recommended to prevent heart and vascular disease apply to people with this problem. The same is true of cigarettes. I have not found any conditions benefited by obesity or smoking cigarettes.

Today's hand would be bid one no-trump—three no-trump in any standard-type system. South has 17 good points for his no-trump, North has 11 for his raise.

Twenty-eight points usually makes game, but this time it won't unless South exercises considerable care before playing from dummy at trick one. If he says to himself, "I have a free finesse," and then reaches for the jack of spades, he will wind up deep in the soup. West will get in with both his aces and will cash three spade tricks.

If South stops to think, he will insure his contract by playing dummy's three-spot and winning with his ace. After that quiet start, he will proceed to knock out either minor-suit ace. Should East win, East won't be able to do anything about the spade suit. However, West will win and will continue with the nine of spades.

South is not clairvoyant. He finesesses the jack this time. East takes his queen but can't lead a spade back to his partner. South will have time to knock out the other minor-suit ace.

What happens if East started with three spades? He takes his queen and leads the suit back to set up the 13th spade for his partner but two aces, plus two spades, aren't enough to beat three no-trump.

Suppose West had opened a doubleton and East held the other ace? Then South would go down. You can't win them all.

an air swallower. Belching often results in taking in more air than is actually expelled. These problems are often related to nervousness.

I know what you mean about the problem of relaxing if you don't feel well from any cause. You might sleep soundly if you could eliminate your problem. The best approach is to treat the cause. Gall bladder surgery is not always the answer since the same problems can and often do persist after surgery. Your doctor may not want you to risk that kind of treatment and may rightly feel the risk outweighs the likelihood of your getting any significant improvement.

Besides your diet you might avoid eating for at least four hours before going to bed and take some charcoal tablets if you can get them. Charcoal helps absorb gas and may help relieve your distention but it won't cure the underlying cause.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Could you tell me something about hyperlipemia? How serious is it and can it be controlled by diet? What effect does smoking have on this condition?

Dear Reader—Lipid means fatlike. The term is used for increased amounts of fat and cholesterol in the blood. The condition is often associated with heart and vascular disease. The diet principles and living patterns recommended to prevent heart and vascular disease apply to people with this problem. The same is true of cigarettes. I have not found any conditions benefited by obesity or smoking cigarettes.

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH

Two or three years ago the would-be investor looking for reliable descriptive material on mutual funds—the kind that would enable him to make intelligent investment decisions—found there was almost nothing readily available.

Now, fortunately, publishers have awakened to the fact that about six million individuals in this country own mutual fund shares (plus perhaps a million institutional investors), giving them a large and information-hungry audience. A number of books have begun filling the vacuum, three published in recent months.

The best, in our opinion, is by that controversial author (of "How To Avoid Probate"), Norman Dacey. Again he pulls no punches in "Dacey on Mutual Funds" (Crown Publishers, $4.95), and since we devoted an earlier column to the book, we'll only repeat that when Dacey writes about mutual funds, it's like a jockey writing about race horses.

As a professional estate planner he's channeled millions into mutual funds, and he's hailed them into court when he thought they weren't doing right by their shareholders.

"Successful Investing Through Mutual Funds," by Robert Frank (Hart Publishing Co.; paperback, $2.45) was "written with the neophyte in mind," and it does indeed take an A-B-C approach to the funds, in a kind of Dick-and-Jane style, explaining what a fund is and how it's put together.

Frank has no particular axes to grind. He does believe in mutual funds for investors without substantial capital and professional expertise, so the treatment is generally pro-fund.

When he gets into the nuts-and-bolts of fund operations, the author seems to display a limited practical experience. We hope, for example, that no reader will follow his instructions for redeeming unissued shares.

"How to Make Money with Mutual Funds," by David L. Markstein (New York: McGraw-Hill; hardcover, $7.95), seems to be written more from the view of people who sell funds than those who buy them.

Markstein, who does in fact work in the brokerage industry, as a financial analyst, has all the enthusiasm of a salesman for his subject. His jaunty, informal style is readable, but the reader may wish the author had sacrificed some of the romance for more material on criteria for evaluating fund performance.

That need is filled, however, by "The Mutual Fund Almanac," an annual publication that provides any fund-watcher, or would-be investor, with the kind of performance data needed to weigh and judge.

It has a meaty text section, bringing the reader up to date on developments of the past year, and the rest of the 96-page oversized paperback is devoted to tables covering 607 funds. Besides performance data (price changes), they show minimum purchase, sales charge (122 no-load funds are identified), types of plans offered, etc.

Retitled this year, the annual formerly appeared as "The Manual of Mutual Funds." It's available by mail order ($2.25) from Enterprise Publications, 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Retiring From Secret Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secret Service Agent Rufus Youngblood, whose name vaulted into history one day in Dallas, is retiring and wants to see the world.

Youngblood, 47, says he has been around the world numerous times, but all he remembers are the inner rooms where matters of state are decided.

He's been to Bangkok five times, "but all I know about Thailand is an airport, a hotel and the palace," he said.

Youngblood's unannounced retirement May 31 would have gone unnoticed except for his name as related to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Canada Geese and Their Month-Old Goslings

—From 4x5 Ektachrome, Alex. H. Washburn

The Star's 22nd Process Color Show pictures The Editor's pair of adult Canada Geese and their month-old goslings, in The Editor's "Back 40" miniature game preserve on S. Walnut St.

The four goslings were hatched April 13, and this four-color photograph was made May 14. Two days after the picture the goslings shed their baby fuzz and emerged as miniature Honkers, complete with bright feathers and chin-strings.

This is the third of The Star's color productions employing Eastman's Silver Mask, a switch from the masking film used previously, Eastman's Tri-mask. If the present Silver Mask picture and a fourth to come turn out O.K. The Star will install an automatic film processor and begin production of four-color separation negatives for other newspapers, printers, and advertisers and their agencies.

Below is a black and white picture of the adult Canada Geese and their goslings when 3 days old, originally published April 15.

Editor Washburn made the top Ektachrome and the bottom black and white. Separations were made by Garland Bosley, vice-president of our film and chemical supplier, Jungkind Photo-Graphic, Little Rock, on The Star's 8x10 Berkey color separator, first to be purchased by an American newspaper—the second purchaser being Chicago Tribune.

Little Change Expected in Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Little change is expected in Arkansas weather through Wednesday, with hot and humid conditions and scattered thundershowers in the afternoons and early evenings.

Moist Gulf air still blankets the state in the form of a large high pressure mass. This high moisture level brought patchy fog to parts of North and Central Arkansas this morning.

Thunderstorms were widely scattered over Arkansas Monday, with the largest rainfall amounts recorded in spots in Central Arkansas. Little Rock had 2.88 inches at Adams Field, while Harrison reported the second largest amount of .38 of an inch.

Temperatures were generally a little lower Monday afternoon, due to the shower activity, reaching the upper 80s and lower 90s, except at Texarkana where a hot 94 degrees was recorded.

Overnight lows across the state include Fayetteville 65, Harrison 65, Jonesboro 71, Memphis 72, Pine Bluff 69, Little Rock 69, El Dorado 68, Texarkana 72, and Fort Smith 69. Rainfall reports for the 24-hour period ended at 7 a.m. included 2.88 inches at Little Rock, .38 at Harrison, and .12 at Pine Bluff.

Malpractice Rehearing Is Rejected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court rejected Monday the petition by Dr. Vandee Kroft of Little Rock, who was convicted of malpractice, for a rehearing.

Dr. Kroft was convicted of malpractice in the treatment of a laceration suffered by Wilbur H. Cox of North Little Rock while she was an intern at Baptist Medical Center in Little Rock.

In the trial court, she was found to be 65 per cent responsible and another doctor 35 per cent responsible for negligence.

Mrs. Kroft petitioned the court for a retrial saying that the case had been dismissed by her lawyer without her knowledge.

Ammonia Leak Inspected by Biochemist

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A biochemist from Texas A and M University toured the Floral community near here Monday following the rupture of an anhydrous ammonia pipeline June 5.

Dr. Gerard O'Donovan was sent to investigate a leak in a pipeline of the Gulf Central Pipeline Co.

O'Donovan said that about 80 tons of the liquid, under 1,400 pounds per square inch pressure escaped through the rupture.

He said that 10,000 acres had been affected by the gas, but he said another 30,000 acres "probably will be benefitted by the rupture because it 'anhydrous ammonia' is excellent fertilizer.

O'Donovan was accompanied on his inspection by two lawyers and an insurance adjuster.

He said he advised farmers in the area to hove their stock and not to eat fish and food grown above ground. He said he gave residents of the area detailed instructions on when to begin restocking ponds and using the land.

Pros. Atty. David B. Hodges of Newport has called a meeting July 2 to discuss the rupture and to determine if there were any criminal violations committed.

Little Rock to Get Sports Center Plant

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers announced Monday that Levi Strauss & Co., will build a $6 million sports-wear distribution center at Little Rock that will employ more than 500 persons.

Levi, a pant's manufacturer with headquarters in San Francisco, will be in operation in late 1972 on a 70-acre site in the Little Rock South Industrial Park.

Dan Roebuck, executive director of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, said Levi was the first industry to establish a major distribution complex in Arkansas.

He said that the location of the center was the first step in Arkansas' growth as a distribution hub for the Southwest-Southeast market.

Redistricting Board Can't Find Plan

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Working late into the night, the state Board of Apportionment could not agree on a final plan of legislative redistricting Monday and finally broke off talks until today.

Deadlocked after a 9½-hour session, including an hour-long dinner break, the board decided to adjourn shortly after 11:30 p.m. and to begin again at 11 a.m. today.

Gov. Dale Bumpers said shortly before adjournment, however, that "I can't believe we're going to be much better off tomorrow than we are now."

The governor said the board should "finalize something." He said if the board reached the point that it was hopelessly deadlocked, redistricting would be handed over to the courts and he did not believe this would be fair to either the courts or the voters.

Bumpers presented to the board two plans for redistricting the House that would reapportion most of the state on a single-member district basis but which would create seven multi-member districts in one proposal and nine in another, and each plan died because of a lack of a seconding motion.

Likewise failing because of the absence of a seconding motion were three Senate proposals and two House plans offered by Atty. Gen. Ray H. Thornton Jr., who with Bumpers and Secretary of State Kelly Bryant compose the board.

Each of Thornton's plans would have created single-member districts entirely for both houses. A strong advocate of the single-member concept, Thornton objected to Bumpers' proposals because of their multi-member districting, but he would not second any of the plans. He said after Bumpers offered his second proposal that he wanted the board to be unanimous in its reapportionment choice, but that obviously was not to be Monday night.

Bumpers said unanimity was a "very fine thing," but that if total unanimity could not be reached the board should come as close as possible to it. He said there was a "remarkable similarity" between his and Thornton's Senate plans and, except for the multimember facet of his House proposal, between their House offerings.

The reapportionment of the House seats in Pulaski County appeared to be the principal source of disagreement.

In his first motion calling for the creation of seven multi-member districts, Bumpers proposed three multimember districts for the county — one electing six representatives, another three representatives and a third five representatives — and coupled it with a single-member district in a predominantly black portion of North Little Rock.

Bryant said he could support Bumpers' plan with a few exceptions, and one of them was Pulaski County. He persuaded the governor, on Bumpers' second plan, to include five multi-member districts for Pulaski County, each electing three representatives. The board, which failed to meet a Feb. 1 constitutional deadline for redistricting the legislative positions because census data were not available, had tentatively approved in May a plan for the single-member redistricting of both the House and Senate. At the outset of Monday's meeting, which started at 2 p.m., Bumpers said the board would make some "slight revisions" of that plan.

At Bumpers' behest, the board amended previously adopted redistricting guidelines calling for the establishment of single-member districts to say that multimember districts "may be used in the House where they provide a more cohesive community of interest, minimize the electoral process and provide assurance that identifiable minority groups will not be submerged."

Thornton got the board to insert wording that such districts should be used sparingly and "should not encompass a significant percentage of the membership of the House."

The board's readiness to consider some multimember districts apparently stemmed from recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions on apportionment.

Bumpers' first plan for House reapportionment would have created the three Pulaski County multimember districts, a multimember district in the Fort Smith area electing three representatives and multimember districts in Hot Springs, the Helena-West Helena area and Texarkana and environs, including portions of Miller, Sevier and Little River counties.

After failing to receive a seconding motion, Bumpers said: "It seems like we're so close we can agree on something. Man, I don't want to go back and start all over again."

His second proposal for the House included the five Pulaski County multimember districts, a multimember district in Fort Smith electing three representatives and multimember districts in West Memphis, Hot Springs, Jonesboro and Fayetteville electing two House members each.

The other districts would have elected one representative each.

One of Thornton's House plans, creating entirely single-member districts, would leave the boundaries of 45 counties unbroken by overlapping district lines. The variance in the population from the largest to smallest district would have been 7.2 per cent. His other proposal was a variation of this plan.

Thornton offered a Senate plan that would preserve the boundaries of 60 counties and create a population variance of 2.7 per cent. His other proposals would make some alterations in this single-member proposal.

Bumpers said he would oppose multimember districts if he thought he were sacrificing principle. But he said he thought the multimember districts he had proposed would simplify the electoral process by reducing the number of overlapping House and Senate districts, thereby decreasing the number of ballots that would be required.

Thornton objected that multimember districts raised campaign costs and lessened the office holder's relationship with the voters.

He also said that if the board adopted multimember districts the action would have a detrimental effect on a proposed state constitutional amendment rewriting the legislative article of the 1874 Constitution that would require single-member districts.

4th Army to Become Part of the 5th

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The 4th U.S. Army becomes part of the newly designated 5th Army as bands play and troops march in take-over ceremonies here Wednesday.

The new 5th Army area will include the 4th Army's area of Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas in addition to most of the area previously covered by the 5th Army — Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

Ft. Hood and III Corps will become part of the new army, which will have headquarters at Ft. Sam Houston, the old 4th Army center.

Lt. Gen. George V. Underwood, 4th Army commanding general, will take over her merged command whose formation was first announced March 6 last year.

The old 5th Army had headquarters at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., since it moved there from Chicago in 1967.

The merged Army will be called the 5th because of that army's World War II combat record in Italy. The 4th saw no overseas action during World War II but served as a training and equipment center for other units stationed abroad.

Congressmen Inspecting Secret Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration witnesses were invited today to follow the ill-guarded Pentagon papers to Capitol Hill as congressmen continued an open inspection of the way the government tries to keep its secrets.

State, Justice and Defense department representatives were asked to testify during the fifth day of the House government information subcommittee's public investigation of document-classification practices.

Although the 47-volume, still top-secret history of the U.S. role in Vietnam was delivered Monday for Senate and House use, members of the House Government Operations Committee demanded they be supplied a full set for their own review. A law requires supplying information on demand of that committee.

In addition, the members of the committee—parent of the information panel—directed Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to turn over a complete copy of a "command and control study of the Gulf of Tonkin incident," a report said to have been denied a Senate committee on grounds it is a "privileged executive document."

The developments came as the subcommittee heard author David Wise, former head of the Washington bureau of the old New York Herald Tribune, charge "state secrets in Washington are handed around like popcorn by presidents and lesser officials when it suits their political purpose."

In addition, Wise said, the document secrecy system "has been used to deprive the American people of information which is later sold to them by officials," through memoirs drawing on classified material.

Meantime, James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary during the Eisenhower administration and currently vice president of the American Broadcasting Co., reported federal files and vaults are bulging with 235 million pages of still-secret documents from World War II and the Korean War.

Appearing on an ABC radio-television news program with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of The Washington Post, Hagerty said classified documents from World War II total 160 million pages—including 23 million jointly held by the United States and the United Kingdom.

"And this thing has been misused," Hagerty said. He said departments, to give more importance to a paper sent to the White House, often will stamp it top secret when the marking is not necessary.

University Women Would End the War

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The American Association of University Women called Monday for withdrawal of the United States from the Southeast Asia war, but asked no time limit for carrying out such action.

The word "immediate," which appeared in the resolution before the word "withdrawal," was struck out after some speakers argued that this would be logistically impossible. There was talk of some kind of timetable for withdrawal, but this too was abandoned.

The AAUW, meeting here for its biennial convention, also approved a resolution asking the government to vote to admit Red China to the United Nations. An amendment aimed at protecting the interests of other nations—Taiwan was intended although not mentioned—was defeated.

Other resolutions passed at the Monday session:

—The AAUW urged the government to participate fully in the 1972 United Nations Conference on Human Environment.

—Supported United States approval of the Geneva Protocol of 1925 and opposed the military use of such new chemical and biological warfare agents as herbicides and defoliants.

—Favored establishment by the United Nations of a permanent peace-keeping force.

Ten regional dinners were scheduled Monday night.

Texas, Hawaii and Vermont were once independent republics.
